2) [25%] Answer the following questions in English.

The person who is truly effective has the humility and reverence to recognize his own perceptual limitations and to appreciate the rich resources available through interaction with the hearts and minds of other human beings. That person values the differences because those differences add to his knowledge, to his understanding of reality. When we're left to our own experiences, we constantly suffer from a shortage of data. Is it logical that two people can disagree and that both can be right? It's not logical: it's psychological. And it's very real. You see the young lady; I see the old woman from the same picture. We see the same black lines and white spaces. But we interpret them differently.

Using less than 50 words, please address why human perceptions can differ so significantly, and comment on the above arguments.

3) [10%] 請把下列英文句子翻譯成中文:

"We cannot know the duration of this war, but we are prepared for the battle ahead," Bush told hundreds of troops and their families.

4) [15%] 改寫或更正下列句子，使其較為通順:

- (a) We use a alternative method, it runs slightly slow but takes fewer memory.
- (b) My first visit to Boston will always be remembered by me.
- (c) She only found two mistakes.
